At a Meeting of the Vice-Chancellor, Heads of Houſes, and Proctors, in the Delegates Room, July 1, 1793.

It was Ordered,

THAT on the Mornings of the enſuing Commemoration and of the two following Days, the great Gates of the Schools oppoſite Hertford College be open for Ladies who come in Carriages, and the Gate oppoſite the Radcliffe Library for Ladies without Carriages, from half after Nine till Ten o'Clock: and that no Gentlemen be admitted with them within thoſe Gates: that Coachmen ſet down with the Horſes' Heads towards the Parks.

That at Ten, and after, Carriages come to the North Door of the Theatre; that Coachmen ſet down with their Horſes' Heads towards Balliol College, and take up always with their Heads towards Holywell.

JOHN WILLS, VICE-CHANCELLOR.

JULY 1, 1793.